POLICE SERGEANT

Class Definition

Under direction, performs supervisory and specialized police work in the field and office and performs law enforcement duties in the protection of life and property.

Distinguishing Characteristics

Police Sergeant is the first-line supervisory class in the Police series. Incumbents supervise police patrol and traffic regulatory activities, and special duties of comparable responsibility. An incumbent frequently participates in the work performed by subordinate officers, and may act for superiors in their absence. Incumbents receive specific instructions on new and specialized assignments, but work independently in performing regularly assigned duties. This class is distinguished from Police Lieutenant in that incumbents of the latter manage the day-to-day activities of a bureau, direct special activities in a unit of the bureau, or serve as an area commander. It is distinguished from Police Specialist in that incumbents of the latter perform specialized police and/or law enforcement investigation work and do not have ongoing supervisory responsibility.
